BUTLER, MISSOURI.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 17, 1885.

Poor old republican party, fare-well.

The heart of the mossback beats gladly.

The Knights of Labor are on a strike in Texas.

New York, Maryland and Virginia. Nice pyramid.

As usual, the republicans all stayed at home in New York state.

President Cleveland, your administration is satisfactory, New York democrats.

Gen. McClellan was buried at Trenton, Monday last. The services were very plain and unostentatious.

New York went democratic. We grieve greatly in so stating but we cannot help it.—Butler Republican.

New York went democratic. We greatly rejoice in so stating it and we can't help it.

What a coincidence. The Thanksgiving proclamation of President Cleveland and democratic victory in New York. All good democrats should eat turkey and pray for the deliverance of Iowa.

There are a great many reasons given as to why New York went democratic. Some say the bloody shirt did it, others that the mugwumps still others say the storm in the eastern part of the state. But the best reason is, the democrats had the most votes.

John McCullough, once one of the greatest tragedians of America, died at his home in Philadelphia on the 8th inst. This great actor has been affected with mental aberration for some time and within the past few months has been confined in an asylum.

Virginia was bulldozed again into confederate hands, and we are sorry for it, but we cannot help it.—Butler Republican.

Virginia, the mother of presidents and the home of the father of our country, has again redeemed herself from the demagogues and renegades, and we are glad of it, we can't help it.

By proclamation, the president sets aside Thursday, November 26th, as a day of thanksgiving, and requests that all business be suspended and the people assemble in their usual place of worship and with prayer and songs of praise devoutly testify their gratitude to the Giver of every good and perfect gift, for all that He has done for us in the year that has passed, for our preservation as United States and the blessings of peace, &c.

The Rev. Mr. Downs, of Boston, is not having as easy sailing in his little inconsistencies as Henry Ward Beecher. His church has refused to sustain him in his licentious habits, and the injured husband is making it rather hot for the reverend gentleman in the courts. The facts are, such scoundrels as this fellow Downs does more to injure the cause of the christian religion than all of the non-professionals in the world. A term in the penitentiary would serve such sleek rascals right.

The following telegram sent by President Cleveland to Gov. Hill, on the receipt of the news from New York, puts the lie to the statement published in the republican papers that he was opposed to the nomination and election of that gentleman:

"Executive Mansion, Washington D. C., Nov. 4, 1885.—Hon. David B. Hill, Elmira, N. Y.: I have just returned from Buffalo and learned the result when nearly here: I heartily congratulate you on your election. [Signed] GROVER CLEVELAND."

C. B. & Q. LATEST FROM CHICAGO.

W. E. Walton left Sunday evening for Chicago as a representative from Bates county, to be present at a conference on yesterday between the managers of the C. B. & Q. railroad and committees from along the proposed southwest extension of that road. Holden, Higginsville, Lexington, Odesa and other points will be represented at the conference. We are informed that this company only ask the right of way and depot grounds, and we believe we can safely promise them that, as our people would be indeed standing in their own light should they reject such a fair proposition.

LATER: The following telegram was received just as we go to press: CHICAGO, ILLS., Nov. 10th 1885. EDITOR TIMES: Interviewed C. B. & Q. officials. Engineers to survey route soon.

WM. E. WALTON.

GLORIOUS RESULTS.

Watchman, what of the night? All's well! comes the welcome shout from the watch-tower. Hill is elected by 12,000 majority in New York and with him the full democratic state ticket saved. Thus is President Cleveland and his cabinet sustained by the democratic party of the President's own state and mugwumpery is rebuked.

In Virginia General Fitzhugh Lee is indeed in the saddle and has ridden rough-shod over the neck of that traitor to everything man should hold dear, friendship, love, country and family, John Wise. The Virginians have risen in their might and repudiated Mahoneism by a majority too large to be misapprehended. By a majority of over 30,000 have relegated that arch traitor "back to the vile race from whence he sprung, unwept, unhonored and unsung." Farewell, Billy Mahone; he would indeed be a hardened criminal who would wish to pluck one laurel from that wreath which encircles your brow, whose component parts are deceit and treachery, won by cunning. It is the brand of Cain, which will follow you to the grave and warn every passer-by to beware of the man who would sell himself, body and soul, to that fickle goddess, ambition.

Maryland goes democratic by an increased democratic majority, and thus is insured the return of that grand good man and excellent statesman, Gorman, to the U. S. Senate.

Iowa, formerly that republican stronghold, which gave Grant a majority of 60,000 over all opposition in 1872, and Garfield's majority over Hancock in 1880 was nearly 30,000; now it takes the official count to decide who has won.

Large democratic gains reported in Colorado, and bleeding Kansas and Mississippi goes democratic without opposition.

Can the wise men of the republican party now read the fate of that party in the hand writing so plainly written? Is it death thus foreshadowed or only a Rip Van Winkle sleep, from which it may hope to arise, not like Rip, old and feeble, but with renewed courage, purified by its long sleep? Truly, coming events cast their shadows before, and these grand and glorious results of Tuesday's election are but the expression of the people of confidence in that party of reform and honest government, which has risen, sphinx like from the ashes of the past, to again take in trust the high offices of the people to return them when called for, many years to come, pure and free as when received, unsullied by star route thievery, land grabs or whiskey ring frauds.

It is stated in the papers that Billy Mahone is making arrangements to pack his grip and forever shake the dust of Virginia soil from his feet. Please don't stop him this side of Canada. He fought for confederacy, he voted with the democracy, he turned his coat for power, not principle he has disgraced Virginia by disgracing himself and there will be nothing but rejoicing at his departure.

Illinois, Georgia and Texas were visited by cyclones last Saturday. Several persons were killed and considerable damage done to property.

The mayor of Sedalia was arrested on a bench warrant charging him with receiving a bribe. The man that bribed him with the pittance of twenty-five dollars, indicted, convicted and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary, last week. The man that would receive a bribe is no better than the man that would give one.

LATER: The mayor received the same sentence.

Governor Hill declares it as his intention to give the people of New York a purely democratic administration, and says that he will not call upon the republicans for advice in the matter. This is right, as Hill was undoubtedly elected by democrats; the republicans and mugwumps who voted for him did so with that understanding, and did not expect to dictate his policy. No, it is a grand democratic tidal wave of reform that is sweeping over the country; the people want a pure, clean administration and they should have it. Give us a purely democratic administration and if there are any errors committed let the democrats be responsible for them. If the democratic party is not competent to run this government the sooner we are made aware of that fact the better it will be for us and the country.

Kansas City's latest sensation and seven days' wonder is the recent discovery that one of her most prosperous business men, who has been engaged in business in that city for 15 years, is not a man, but a woman in male attire. Her real name is Mary Wolcott, but she has been known as Frank Gray, and under that alias has been transacting business for so long, and her identity would no doubt have remained a mystery but for an unfortunate law suit, in which Mrs. Wolcott's name figured as a non resident, and her dual existence was discovered by detectives in search of that woman. Her disguise was complete, even to her voice, and the strangest part of the singular romance is that her nearest friends never suspected but that she was what she appeared, and were the last to believe the strange revelation.

Editor Steed, of the Pall Mall Gazette, and Mrs. Jarrett have been convicted by a British jury on the charge of abducting Eliza Armstrong from her father for illegitimate purposes. It will be remembered that the Pall Mall Gazette denounced in scathing terms this growing evil in London society and exposed the vile and damning methods by which young and innocent girls were entrapped and ruined by human sharks. This broad accusation and denunciation of the Gazette implicated some of the most prominent men, both in social and political life, in London, and of course gained their unqualified enmity. To prove that his charges were not libelous editor Steed undertook a practical demonstration of how the nefarious business was carried on, and, by the assistance of the woman Jarrett, he succeeded in buying this girl Eliza Armstrong from her mother. It looks very much as if Steed's conviction was the result of an effort of parties he had exposed.

Mrs. Minnie Walkup is a free woman. The jury has pronounced her not guilty of her husband's murder. This case has attracted a great deal of interest throughout the west on account of mystery involved and the circumstances pointing to the guilt of the fair young wife of one month. It will be remembered that in August that J. R. Walkup, then acting mayor of Emporia died suddenly and the doctors pronounced it a case of arsenic poisoning. Walkup had met his wife in New Orleans where her mother kept a boarding house and after a short courtship gained her consent to visit his home in Emporia with her mother when they went east and were married at Covington Ky. Circumstantial evidence pointed strongly to the guilt of the fair defendant and it was thought for a time that she might be convicted. The blooming Minnie evidently has the sympathy of the western people.

Little Billy Mahone, good by.

As yet Chauncey M. Depew and Col. Fred Grant have failed to produce any proof in support of their charges against that honored statesman and dead patriot, Andrew Johnson. In fact, everything charged in the Depew letter, said to have been told to him by Gen. Grant, and substantiated by Col. Fred, is reflecting to the detriment of the parties they wished to implicate. The facts are that there are no proofs to substantiate such base charges except the words of these two men, and they got their information from a third party. Not in all of Grant's letters or his history is this circumstance even hinted at. It is now in order for Depew to own up that he was either drunk or lied, or both, and wrote this letter to gain cheap notoriety.

Shooting Scrape at Hume.

Two brothers, Will and Rube Craig, of this place, who were working at Olives coal bank, 15 miles east of this place, got into a little difficulty last Wednesday morning at the coal bank. They were sitting down when one of them told the other to go to work. They got to quarreling when Will picked up a rock and started toward Rube. Rube began to back off and pulled his pistol and demanded Will to stop. Then Rube stopped and told Will if he came any farther he would kill him, he fired two shots at Will, and then Will turned to get his shotgun, and Rube shot Will in the back, the ball just barely going through his clothing. Then the boys told Rube that he had better get from there or Will would kill him; the boys held Will until Rube had gotten off sixty or eighty yards; then Will fired at him and Rube fell, and jumping up waved his hat at them, and started toward Rich Hill. He has not been heard of since.—Hume Star.

Bates County Medical Society.

The Bates County Medical Society met at Hume on Monday evening last, with a fair representation from Kansas. At least twenty-six "Simon pure" regular physicians answered to roll call. The meeting was called to order by Dr. Allen, of Rich Hill and Dr. Heylum selected sec. pro tem. On motion of Dr. W. A. Williams, Drs. Tyree, Pearce, Sellers, Roberts and Ward were received as honorary members. After the regular business of the society was transacted Dr. Warren, of Sprague, read a paper entitled "Our Profession" which was received by a vote of thanks by the society. Dr. Pearce then read an excellent paper, subject "Relation of Physician to Patient." It was heartily applauded by all present. Next in order was a discussion of "Typhoid Fever," which lasted about one hour, after which the M. D's, repaired to the City Hotel, where an elegant supper had been prepared by our local doctors in honor of the visitors; after supper and a hearty shaking of hands all separated to meet in Rich Hill, on the first Tuesday in February, at 2 p. m.—Hume Star.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.
